Subject: VCW VIEW: August 26th - Women's Equality Day
Date: Tuesday, August 26, 2014 3:47:25 PM

Today, Tuesday August 26th is Women's Equality Day, the annual commemoration of the day 94 years ago when the 19th Amendment, giving women the right to vote, was codified into law. This is a day when we take time to appreciate the hard work and sacrifice of the women and men who fought for that right.

Progress continues: momentum is now building toward more improvements for working women and families, both in our state and nationally. This June's White House Summit on Working Families and the Vermont version of that event, just a week earlier, galvanized participants and moved the needle on workplace issues.

Vermont Commission on Women (VCW) invites you now to join us for the next step: November's The Unfinished Agenda: New England Women's Policy Conference in Boston.

This is a day-long gathering of leaders on this issue: our region's elected officials, heads of nonprofits, business executives, advocates and members of state women's commissions. These leaders will engage in large and small discussions about the economic security challenges women and families face in New England, explore policies and strategies to address them, and then return to their states to work with local stakeholders from the public, private, and nonprofit sectors to enact change.

Please save the date and plan to join us for this exciting and energizing day, Friday November 7th 2014 from 10-5 at the JFK Presidential Library and Museum in Boston. Look for our next email with more details, travel information and a registration link.
